Dear Sir/Madam.

My name is Mark Stone, I have been driving maxi cabs for about 20 years.

Currently I believe the maxi cabs service is not running at full capacity. I have about 25% of my day where I do normal work, which is hard because a lot of people reject getting into big vans. If more Maxi cabs are brought into the system, there will be a lot more quieter times for this service, which would result in losing long time career drivers to possible go back to driving sedans which are more acceptable to the public.

There is not much 5 seater work or high occupancy work to justify much more vans. I suggest a one of 50 vans increase and review the service after two years.
